

Dr. Brett M. Baker
Assistant Inspector General for Audit
National Science Foundation Office of Inspector General

Dr. Brett M. Baker is the Assistant Inspector General for Audit (AIGA) at the National Science Foundation Office of Inspector General (OIG). In this capacity he is responsible for directing a program of financial statements, financial-related, and performance audits and evaluations of NSF's programs and activities. He was previously the AIGA at the Department of Commerce OIG, where he provided direction and oversight to auditors and inspections staff performing financial statement, financial-related, and performance audits and evaluations. Prior to that, Dr. Baker was the Director for Internal Review with the Defense Finance and Accounting Service where he was responsible for providing audit and investigative oversight for Defense financial management operations. Before his work with Defense, he held systems audit leadership positions with the Department of Education OIG. He is also a veteran of the U.S. Army (Signal Corps).

Dr. Baker has been honored twice for his contributions to the OIG community receiving Awards for Excellence from the President's Committee on Integrity and Efficiency in 1998 and in 2003. He is also the Chair of the Federal Audit Executive Council (FAEC).

Dr. Baker earned a doctorate in Information Technology Management at the University of Maryland University College and a master's degree in Information Resource Management at Central Michigan University. He also holds a B.A. in Accounting from the University of Northern Iowa and a B.S in Sociology from Iowa State University. Dr. Baker is a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) and Certified Information Systems Auditor (CISA).